Guinea Agricultural Market Linkages Activity	The primary objective of the Guinea Agricultural Market Linkages Activity (GAMLA) is to increase market-driven production, processing, and sales of selected agricultural and forest products. Secondary objectives include the identification of longer term opportunities for agribusiness development in Guinea, the identification of key policy constraints to agribusiness development, and the identification of water technologies that can boost rural income generation. By creating additional economic opportunities in rural-based value chains, Guinean farmers will be motivated to manage their resource base in a more sustainable manner. Among many other accomplishments, the project has (1) provided samples of shea butter for product analysis, which will provide a baseline for shea butter quality parameters, and (2) created two databases that contain a list of local and international buyers and a list of packaging suppliers able to comply with exporting regulations.
