Norman E. Borlaug International Agricultural Science and Technology Fellowship Program	The Borlaug Fellowship Program helps developing and middle-income countries strengthen their agricultural trade and scientific capacity by providing short-term scientific training and collaborative research programs to entry-level scientists, policymakers and university faculty. The program helps build capacity and market access for sustainable and competitive agricultural sectors by promoting the adoption of sound regulatory and food safety policies and new technologies. Iraq Description for 2008: This program provides short-term training opportunities for Iraqi seed producers and mill operators with focus on best farm practices, improved grading, grain drying and plant pest management techniques, and marketing of products both within Iraq and for shipment to neighboring countries. Other program activities focused on effective use of GIS information in developing reliable crop estimates which directly impact food security by determining the need for importation of food stocks.
