Norman E. Borlaug International Agricultural Science and Technology Fellowship Program	The Borlaug Fellowship Program helps developing and middle-income countries strengthen their agricultural trade and scientific capacity by providing short-term scientific training and collaborative research programs to entry-level scientists, policymakers and university faculty. The program helps build capacity and market access for sustainable and competitive agricultural sectors by promoting the adoption of sound regulatory and food safety policies and new technologies. Sri Lanka Description for 2008: This program supports agricultural trade capacity building in South Asia by training young scientists from Sri Lanka in plant pathology, pest management, agricultural biotechnology, food safety, food quality standards, and other related subjects. One objective of this trade capacity building program is to develop a network of scientists in Sri Lanka with up-to-date knowledge of global agricultural scientific technologies and who understand developments in trade-related fields.
