Integrated Management of Indigenous Lands in Ecuador	The Integrated Management of Indigenous Lands program builds business capacity among lowland indigenous groups, helping them to development small enterprises. These include production of handicrafts and non-traditional forest products for the national and international specialty markets, as well as cultural tourism. The program also helps to promote foreign direct investment in communal lands conservation, ecotourism and sustainable natural resource management. Ecuador Description for 2011: Conserving biodiversity is a USG objective and nowhere is it more important than in Ecuador, which may have more biological diversity for its size than any other country. Much of this is conserved in the National Protected Area System (which covers 18 percent of continental Ecuador and the Galapagos) and indigenous territories (19 percent of the country, nearly five million hectares). USAID programs improved the management and local benefits of protected areas and lowland indigenous territories.	Trade-related Tourism	25,000	40,000

Trade and Investment in Ecuador	USAID has provided technical assistance to establish three regional and one national investment attraction program. The programs have worked closely with GOE institutions to identify policies, norms, bottlenecks and red tape that hinder private sector investment and export opportunities. Various working tables have been created to recommend solutions to these issues. In addition, USAID provided technical assistance to develop local/international sales and investment for tourism and agribusiness. Ecuador Description for 2011: In addition, USAID has provided technical assistance to GOE programs to support entrepreneurship and innovation in the regions of Ecuador.	Competition Policy, Business Environment, and Governance	2,472,000	1,200,000
		Activity Total	2,472,000	1,200,000
Watershed Conservation Program	The Watershed Conservation Prog. helps communities living near key watersheds by providing them with alternative economic activities to support conservation. Small productive projects helped local people improve their living conditions by promoting best agricultural practices and linking them to local markets. A diagnosis of potential market linkages was carried out, further identifying and promoting commercial agreements. Ecuador Description for 2011: In Ecuador, watersheds in protected areas provide almost 70 percent of the country drinking water and hydropower energy. USAID supports the protection of water resources and conservation of biodiversity through municipal watershed management. Through the creation of financial mechanisms (endowment funds) USAID promotes a bottom-up consensus on the need for better watershed management and protection of natural habitats.
